

Leadership and Management Training for All Career Stages

For aspiring public health leaders in NC:

NCPHA's Emerging Leaders Program

- Specifically for those who are not yet serving in an upper leadership role
- Develop self-awareness, communication skills and leadership skills through a year-long program
- Nomination process through NCPHA
- Current program: September 2017-2018

For senior leaders working in NC local and state level public health agencies:

North Carolina Public Health Leadership Institute (NCPHLI)

- Intensive year-long program that incorporates on-site sessions, distance learning and peer coaching
- Includes an applied learning project to implement leadership practices
- Applications open November 2017
- Next program: March 2018-March 2019

For managers and supervisors new to their position (less than 2 years) in NC:

Management and Supervision for Public Health Professionals

- For mid-level managers overseeing units in local health departments in N.C.
- Managers of environmental health, community health, nursing, WIC, clinical laboratory and frontline staff
- Registration opens January 2018
- Next course: March 12-16 and April 16-20, 2018

For local public health officers who want to implement transformative change:

Kresge's Emerging Leaders in Public Health (ELPH) Initiative

- Participants apply in pairs to work on innovative concepts to transform their organization's role in public health
- National program - includes up to 125,000 for implementation of a new concept
- 18-month, action-oriented experience
- Next cohort: Summer 2018

